

Eco-Map

The diagram consists of a central circle labeled "Central Person". Surrounding it are ten smaller circles, each containing the labels "Name:" and "Relation:". These circles are arranged in a circular pattern around the central circle. Lines of varying thickness and style connect the central circle to the surrounding circles, representing different types of relationships. A key at the bottom right explains the line styles: solid for positive, dashed for tenuous, and red zigzag for stressful. An arrow indicates the direction of energy flow, and line thickness indicates the intensity of the relationship.

Central Person

Key

- Positive Relationship
- Tenuous Relationship
- Stressful Relationship
- Indicates the direction of energy flow
- Line thickness indicates intensity of relationship